

From: Edith Ang
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/26/02 3:13am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

We should thank Microsoft for its operating system and internet web and email programs. There is nothing wrong to offer their programs all bundled together with a discount price. Companies do it all the time. Loss leaders are done at grocery stores. Restaurants offer either Coke or Pepsi products but never both.

If rivals spend more time on offering better programs, public will buy it. Why act like cry babies and ask government to interfere by punishing the hard working and smarter kids. Let the competitors know they must grow up on their own

Just like the auto industry. Each one of them has to come up with something different to compete for the public. Apple Computer has its followers because they keep on develop new things for their customers. Crest toothpaste for a long time out sells Colgate, now the trend is reversing because of new innovation.

Please stop spending tax money to interfere and fatten the lawyers' pockets.